

Working Safely with Nanomaterials

Edinburgh, UK Friday, July 6, 2012 Start 09.00 to 16.45

The British Occupational Hygiene Society is hosting an International Conference on Working Safely with Nanomaterials in Edinburgh, Scotland on 6th July 2012.

The venue will be the Royal College of Physicians in Queen Street.

The one-day session on Working Safety with Nanomaterials will feature the newly launched generic guidance and discussions on issues relating to working safely with nanomaterials.

This is your opportunity to ask questions on Nanosafety to the Regulatory Authorities and experts in the field.

On behalf of the UK Nanosafety Partnership Group, we look forward to welcoming you to the historic city of Edinburgh and to a stimulating and memorable conference.

Registration is now opened and can be accessed at the BOHS website

<http://www.bohs.org/Events/WorkingwithNanomaterials/>

and the X2012 website <http://www.x2012.org/>

The UK Nanosafety Partnership Group –comprising of HSE, BOHS, IOM, HSL ,EA and other individual experts in the nanotechnology field.

Supported by:

